About us

Toqio gives corporates access to financial tools that transform the value of their distribution networks for growth, efficiency, and resilience. We're not turning corporates into banks, just enabling them to become the nexus between their merchants and financial institutions looking for new opportunities, unblocking the flow of capital, improving liquidity, and creating new and ownable financial exchange channels in their networks.

We believe that with the right partner, corporates can tap the full potential of embedded finance on a fully configurable orchestration platform, harnessing the massive possibilities for growth lying dormant in their merchant networks.
